

COMMUNITY AND RESOURCE SERVICE GUIDE

A RESOURCE FOR PARENTS & THEIR CHILDREN

Elkford

The book is produced by School District #5 – Southeast Kootenay. We are privileged to provide services for children and families on the traditional unceded shared territory of the Ktunaxa People and the chosen home of the Métis.

Elkford Community Resource and Service Guide

The Elkford Community Resource and Service Guide is a resource for families living in Elkford. This Guide is designed to provide residents with information about community agencies, organizations and service providers for families and their children, including area elementary schools, playgrounds, sporting, and recreation facilities.

Community Profile

Elkford is a district municipality in the southeast region of British Columbia. It is 32km north of the junction at Sparwood, on provincial Highway 43.

Elkford has grown into more than just a mining town: it's an extraordinary wilderness community, offering the best of modern amenities and mountain culture, in the Kootenay Rockies of British Columbia. It's located at a higher altitude than any other community in BC and it's one of those rare places where you can still step out your door and into the wilderness.

The disability tax credit (DTC) is a non-refundable tax credit that helps people with disabilities, or their supporting family member, reduce the amount of income tax they may have to pay.

If you have a severe and prolonged impairment, you may apply for the credit. If you are approved, you may claim the credit at tax time.

By reducing the amount of income tax you may have to pay, the DTC aims to offset some of the extra costs related to the impairment.

East Kootenay Inclusive Child Care Support (EKICCS) is funded by the Ministry for Children and Family Development (MCFD) and sponsored by Community Connections Society of Southeast B.C. EKICCS is CARF accredited under Community Services: Child and Youth Services.

REFERRAL PROCESS:

Referrals can be made by the parent or guardian.

Referrals can also be made by the following, with parent or guardian permission:

- A Family Member
- A childcare provider
- A community professional

We provide support services for children birth to 5 years of age who attend a licensed or regulated childcare program (group daycare, preschool, etc.) and require extra support to meet their individual needs and fully participate with their peers because they have a developmental disability or delay.

Support services are also provided to the childcare program staff so they can better meet the child's individual and developmental needs.

To be eligible for the program, a child must have an identified developmental disability or a delay that is documented in an assessment or through a report from a community professional – e.g., Speech Language Pathologist, Early Childhood Educator, etc. Parents would meet with an EKICCS Consultant to complete a support guide that outlines the kinds of developmental intervention and support the child needs and identifies the goals the parents want for their child.

IDP is a home-based family centered program that supports families to encourage their child's optimal level of development. The target population is birth to 3 years of age for those children born with a developmental disability, or who are delayed in one or more developmental areas, or at risk for developmental delay. IDP works closely with Pediatric therapy services, including Speech, Occupational Therapy, Physiotherapy and Pediatricians. There are four consultants who provide services to Cranbrook, Kimberley, Windermere Valley, Canal Flats, Fernie, Sparwood and the Elk Valley.

The East Kootenay Infant Development Program partners with other community agencies such as Bellies to Babies & Young Parent Education program to provide developmental information to these programs. Weekly attendance at these groups allows for promotion of speech and language development using mother goose and opportunities to connect with parents throughout the community.

Healthy Kids Program

Contact Information:

Phone: 1-866-866-0800

Website: www.gov.bc.ca/sdpr

The Healthy Kids Program provides coverage for basic dental treatment, optical care and hearing assistance to children in low-income families, who are not in receipt of income assistance, disability assistance or hardship assistance.

The Healthy Kids Program is an income-tested program. Your children are eligible for the Healthy Kids Program if your family is eligible for Medical Services Plan (MSP) supplementary benefits, and they are under 19 years of age.

Dental

Children are eligible for up to a maximum of $2,000 towards basic dental services every two years. This includes exams, x-rays, fillings, cleanings, and extractions.

Optical

Children are eligible for prescription glasses once a year. This includes lenses and basic frames. MSP covers eye examinations for children.

Hearing

Children are eligible for hearing aids, bone anchored hearing aids, cochlear implants, repairs, and related items. Your audiologist or hearing instrument provider will assess the best option for your child. They then must send in their recommendations for preauthorization. If approved, coverage provides the least expensive, appropriate hearing instrument.

You may be able to get an alternative hearing assistance supplement if your child has permanent profound hearing loss in both ears or won't benefit from a hearing instrument to understand speech.

We provide mental health and substance use information, resources, and peer support to families across BC. We also provide information and resources to people of all ages with an eating disorder or disordered eating concerns. All our services are free of charge, and you can reach us over the phone, by email, or by Zoom video call (please contact us to arrange).

Our approach:

It is important to recognize that mental health challenges are common. At some point in our lifetime, most of us will either struggle with a mental health challenge ourselves or know someone who is affected by one.

At the Kelty Centre, we believe that whether or not a person has been diagnosed with a mental illness, everyone can experience mental well-being.

Approximately 75% of mental health challenges begin before the age of 24, and connecting children, youth, and families to appropriate mental health services and supports is key to improved treatment and outcomes.

What we offer:

- Peer support from FamilySmart Parent Peer Support workers
 - Information and resources on a wide range of mental health and substance use, challenges affecting children and youth, as well as how to support your child's mental wellbeing.
 - Help navigating the mental health and substance use system.
 - Options for support, treatment and networks in BC.
 - Resources for individuals of any age with an eating disorder or a disordered eating concern.
 - Free educational events and webinars for parents and caregivers, and school professionals.

Prevent Shaken Baby Syndrome BC (PSBSBC) works to prevent shaken baby syndrome through province-wide community-based education.

Using a child development model, the Period of Purple Crying © focuses on infant crying, especially inconsolable crying, and its connection to shaken baby syndrome.

Program materials address three basic concepts:

1. Shaking any infant or child is very dangerous.
2. Early infant crying and even colic is a normal part of infant development; and
3. Frustration over early infant crying is the most common trigger for shaking and infant or child.

The program's goals are to create a cultural change in parents' understanding and response to infant crying, and to reduce the number of cases of abusive head trauma by 50 percent.

Licensed Child Care Providers

Quality Child Care Checklist

Research has shown that the first six years of a child's life are the most important part of learning cognitive, physical, social, creative, and emotional skills. For many children, childcare providers are a large part of those formative years; therefore, quality childcare access is critical.

Children who have established positive relationships with their childcare provider are happier and comfortable in their childcare setting. This is a great indicator of quality childcare.

The Quality Child Care Checklist includes the following:

1. Staff and program facilitators with up to date first aid and CPR training in case of emergency.
2. Character references, indicating that practitioners genuinely enjoy interacting with children, can make children feel secure while providing the necessary individual attention.
3. Medical references, indicating that they are mentally and physically capable of caring for children.
4. Develop policies to cover childcare guidance, nutrition, vacation, arrival/ departure, fees, health, and safety.
5. Ongoing education to understand children's differences; be able to recognize behaviours that indicate that a child may need additional support or referral services.
6. Criminal Record Check of all staff or people over the age of 12 who work/ reside at the facility.
7. Liability insurance coverage for the providers and children.
8. Vehicle insurance coverage for transportation of providers and children.
9. Licensed childcare provider access to building/fire inspection reports as well as any/all licensing reports.
10. All childcare providers are required to follow the legal ratios of staff/ facilitators-to-children.
11. Age-appropriate programming covering a variety of interests and developmental levels, including both indoor and outdoor activities.

Have you ever dressed a toddler to go outside in the winter? It can feel like a marathon, or like dressing an octopus - the snowpants, jacket, toque, mitts and boots... and now the baby is crying. So why do we go outside? It is easier to stay inside, close to snacks, toilets and toys right!? It can be, but the benefits for our bodies and minds (children and parents!) are worth it because we are more physically active, we are calmed by the gentle breeze and smell of evergreens, we meet our neighbours and find secret climbing trees. Yes, there are challenges to getting out the door but remember how it feels when you do. Keep the following tips in mind as you plan to get outside with your children.

Stay close to home. When children are young a puddle is a lake, a small hill is a mountain, and a few trees is a jungle. Sometimes it is great to try a new park across town, but young children can find adventure everywhere! Walking around the block with a toddler is an eye-opening experience, they see the world from a completely different perspective. It also opens opportunities to meet neighbours and develop a stronger sense of community and belonging for your family.

Keep it natural. Manufactured playgrounds are the go-to when considering where to meet-up with other families, but they can be limiting for play. Natural spaces offer many different opportunities for children to play, from collecting cones to splashing in the creek to playing house under the trees, the sensory, social and physical benefits to play with and in nature cannot be beat by plastic and metal playgrounds. Remember, you don't need to go far, find your nearby nature and invite friends!

Keep it connected. Find the families who also want to go outside. On the days that it is especially challenging to get out, knowing that there will be other families outside with you can make all the difference. Start an outdoor playgroup and organize casual, no sign-up necessary events in local natural areas or parks. Encourage your existing playgroup to get outside, they will thank you!

Tools and Resources. Sometimes it helps to have a few tools to support exploration in nature.

- The Columbia Basin Environmental Education Network (www.cbeen.ca) is a great local organization which supports environmental education in schools and communities. View their list of resources here: <https://cbeen.ca/education-resources/>
- The Outdoor Learning Store, a social enterprise run by CBEEN, has curated materials to help explore nature, visit the early years collection here: <https://outdoorlearningstore.com/grade-level/early-years/>.
- In The Outdoor Learning Store is the incredible Big Book of Nature Activities – there are dozens of great ideas in here for making your outdoor time interesting and engaging for children and caregivers alike: <https://outdoorlearningstore.ca/product/the-big-book-of-nature-activities-a-year-round-guide-to-outdoor-learning/>
